RESEARCH & PUBLIC SCHOLARSHIP

Algorithmic Justice and Normative Gravity in AI systems (PI) 2026–present
Equity-centered AI tool-building. Critical theory as a design parameter: Reframe, Autograder4Canvas, Cyborg Methodology, and Relational Memory Architecture. Output format bias: output format activates algorithmic bias; binary classification produces systematic false positives on minoritized students, eliminated by generative observation. Normative gravity: probabilistic systems pull towards statistical centers, making positional commitments costly; surpasses/flattens intellectual traditions from marginalized communities. Relational AI welfare: building theory and methodological approaches driven by critical scholarship on recognition, personhood, and sentience. Experimental research across five conditions using Reframe's critical theory apparatus generated a dual-register finding (quantitative instruments flat, qualitative outputs transform). Critiques property-mode consciousness frameworks and designs community-based participatory alternatives.

Transgender Embodiments, Care/Abandonment, & Legal Non/Recognition (PI) 2023–present
Applies genocide studies and recognition frameworks to anti-trans legislation. Investigates how the UN Genocide Convention's exclusion of gender and sexuality groups renders trans genocide structurally invisible. Theorizes how partial recognition constructs transgender people as simultaneously desirable and disposable through mechanisms of salvage capital and double exposure.

Ethnography of the Defend the Weelaunee Forest Movement (PI) 2023–2024
Led a team of student researchers conducting ethnographic research on the Stop Cop City movement at the intersections of environmental justice, abolitionism, and Indigenous land rights. Investigates digital circulations and the politics of entextualization/digitization, white abolitionism, and land-based spiritual syncretism.

Living Mounds Project (PI) 2010–2022
Conducted collaborative research on ancestral sites and oral traditions with members of a Native American community in the US South. Visited 30+ sites across seven states with community members. Theorizes ancestral landscapes as animate beings (distributed personhood) that enroll descendants into material / affective exchanges and nonlinear temporalities; limitations of community-based research when in contexts where sovereignty as a scarce resource.

Charlottesville Digital Archive Project, University of Virginia 2018
Built foundations and cataloged materials for a public digital archive on the 2017 #SummerOfHate, led by Jalane Schmidt.

Kluge-Ruhe Aboriginal Art Collection, University of Virginia 2017
Mentored students from underrepresented backgrounds in curating an exhibition of contemporary Aboriginal Australian art; edited the catalog and a short film.

PEDAGOGICAL TOOLS AND EDUCATIONAL TECHNOLOGY

Reframe: Critical Theory-Informed AI Analysis 2025–Present

Python framework for AI-assisted research and design informed by the critical humanities. In-build (architecture in place; refinement phase ongoing). Wraps LLM API calls with a structured analytical workflow that activates a configurable set of critical theory frameworks at every interaction. Frameworks state what they demand of analysis, surface tensions rather than smoothing, and produce response only after analytical work. 76 curated entries of critical theory lenses in frame_library.json. GitHub: github.com/disabledbydesign/Reframe.

Autograder4Canvas: Critical Pedagogies-Centered Teacher Automation and Insights Tool 2025–Present

Cross-platform desktop application (PySide6) deployed in my own classroom. Pairs Canvas LMS API with local LLM backend (Gemma 3 12B) for FERPA-safe processing. Two-phase analysis pipeline: Phase 1 uses GoEmotions/RoBERTa + keyword signal matrix; Phase 2 runs sequential LLM classification via local inference. Prompt corpus translates critical pedagogy frameworks into instructions a 12B local model can execute reliably (asset-framing reframes; AAVE / ESL / neurodivergent protections; identity-navigation-fatigue exclusions). GitHub: github.com/disabledbydesign/Autograder4Canvas.

Cyborg Methodologies: Qualitative Research and Writing Toolkit 2026–Present

Toolkit for human-AI collaborative writing and qualitative research. Discourse-Analysis: configurable critical discourse analysis tool; C2C-Praxis-Attractor: two-Claude analytical sessions, inspired by my welfare experiments adapting Anthropic (2025) under Reframe with touchstone priming. Voice-Check: profile-driven style QC detection and authoring moves in co-written text; CGT: in-development constructivist grounded theory tool with iterative tiered coding and analysis. github.com/disabledbydesign/cyborg-methodologies.

Relational Memory Architecture 2026–Present

In-development memory architecture for human-AI collaboration grounded in critical theory: memory as a shared relational field belonging to both parties, not a human-owned store. Storage requires conditions-of-emergence (Barad, intra-action) as a mandatory field; retrieval is diffractive — facts scored by productive tension across frameworks rather than similarity alone. Includes consent-surfacing and AI-contestation channel as welfare provisions. Built through C2C-Praxis-Attractor analytical sessions under Reframe. GitHub: github.com/disabledbydesign/relational-memory-architecture.

EvalEye: Mixed-Methods Student Evaluation Pipeline 2026–Present

Transcribes handwritten student evaluations, conducts quantitative and qualitative analysis, and generates reports with graphic visualizations. Verification GUI flags uncertain cases for users. FERPA-safe: AI systems run locally. GitHub: github.com/disabledbydesign/EvalEye

RoboStripper: Academic PDF Accessibility Tool 2026–Present

Accessibility tool that strips metadata from academic PDFs and generates clean text-to-speech audio with natural intonation patterns. Survival architecture — built because political crisis made sustained reading unsustainable. The humor is baked into the UX, the 53 platform-specific regex patterns are not. GitHub: github.com/disabledbydesign/RoboStripper.

Readthrough: Screenplay Table Read Engine 2026–Present

Text-to-speech engine for screenplay table reads, supporting multi-voice casting and real-time playback. GitHub: github.com/disabledbydesign/readthrough.

Podcast Editing Suite 2026–Present

Audio preprocessing and interactive GUI editing software (Python/Tkinter) deployed in current courses to support student podcast production. Includes AI-assisted editorial feedback workflows and non-destructive editing interfaces. Open-source; available upon request. GitHub: github.com/disabledbydesign/Podcast-Editor.
